Jobless claims fall to 2-year low Economic growth cycle 'on the verge of kicking in'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing new claims for jobless benefits fell to a two-year low in late October and remained under 400,000 for the sixth straight week, the government reported Thursday.

Analyst Thomas F. Carpenter of ASB Capital Management in Washington said the report was the latest sign that "the employment situation has at last stabilized."

"The claims numbers suggest that the hiring phase of the economic growth cycle is on the verge of kicking in," Carpenter said. "It won't kick in in a big way, but it will start kicking in."

The Labor Department reported first-time applications for unemployment insurance fell by 5,000 to 355,000 in the week ended Oct. 31, the lowest since claims totaled 354,000 in the week of Aug. 4, 1990. Many analysts had expected claims to rise.

Initial claims, which peaked at 530,000 on March 23, 1991 at the depths of the recession, have numbered less than 400,000 since Sept. 26.

Not included in the report, however, were 20,869 new claims filed under a special emergency unemployment program. That total was down from 23,497 for the week ended Oct. 24 and the lowest since 20,754 applications were filed the week of Sept. 25.

The emergency program numbers, unlike the national figures, are not seasonally adjusted.

Many analysts believe the unemployment rate should improve if claims hold below 400,000. The rate fell for the fourth straight month in October, hitting a six-month low of 7.4 percent.

Others say the economy will have to grow faster than the 2.7 percent annual rate in the third quarter to generate substantial job growth. Only 27,000 jobs were created in October, for instance, less than half of September's 72,000 loss.

Still, the closely watched four-week average of new claims also dropped to a two-year low in the week ended Oct. 31. It fell from 371,500 to 364,500, the lowest since the average was 356,000 on July 14, 1990.

Many analysts prefer to track the four-week average because it smooths out the volatility of the weekly reports.

Provo mayor denies rumors of Leavitt team appointment

By STEVE HASSON
Universe Staff Writer

Provo Mayor Joe Jenkins said he will not resign to accept a position in Governor-elect

Mike Leavitt's administration, Wednesday night.

"I don't know anything about it," Jenkins said.

The mayor said he has joined Leavitt's transition team but has not been offered a permanent position. He also said he would not speculate whether or not Leavitt will offer him a permanent position.

Dennis Hall, Provo City Council chair, said there have been several rumors about the mayor accepting a position from Leavitt because Jenkins and his assistant played a valuable part in Leavitt's campaign.

In answer to rumors, Councilmember Shari Holweg said she would consider running for mayor if Jenkins leaves.

"I will hold off until I see if there is someone running that will represent my philosophies," Holweg said.

Every political decision she has made has been based on whether or not another person with the same goals and objectives is willing to take a stand, she said.

Holweg said it is no secret Jenkins wouldn't want to see her become the new mayor. Jenkins has been shaping the city for seven years and probably views her as someone who would "clean house" and fire everyone, she said.

"Joe probably views me as turning everything upside down," she said. "That is a very wrong perspective."

Jenkins also said he and Holweg have disagreed in the past but if he did leave he would expect whomever filled the position would do so in the city's best interest.

Holweg said the city needs a mayor who will recreate a more service-oriented government rather than continue the administrative one that has been developed recently.

"We've lost services under Mayor Jenkins' administration," she said.

She said people are continually bringing issues before the city council regarding basic service needs, but they are often turned away and told the city doesn't have enough money to fulfill the request.

As an example, she said citizens from the Litchfield subdivision have been before the council several times in the last two years for items of simple traffic control, including crosswalks at bus stops.

"These are not unreasonable concerns," she said. "Yet in the last couple of years the administration has been absolutely deaf to these concerns."

Jenkins said he knows nothing about the Litchfield subdivision but if there is a problem with a subdivision, Holweg should bring it forward and not keep it to herself.

Holweg said she has worked for the city long enough to know the reduction in services is a matter of priorities — not lack of funds. She said the administration has added every kind of white-collar worker, instead of blue-collar workers who are responsible to provide services to the city.

"We've actually cut back," she said. "We're spending more money, but our service level has not kept up with the demand and that can be documented."

"That just shows how little she understands about government," Jenkins said. Several of the "white-collar workers" who have been employed by the city work directly with the essential services Holweg is referring to, the mayor said. The city engineer, parks and recreation director, and the water resources director are examples of Holweg's "white-collar workers," Jenkins said. He added that they usually aren't in suits and ties but are out working on site.

"I think we've kept up very well with the service demands of the city," Jenkins said.

BYU must nix turnovers to beat Falcons

By TAD WALCH
Sports Editor

The two couldn't be more different in style. But measured by success, the BYU and Air Force football teams are quite similar.

Each is a perennial contender for the national bowl bid, but ironically, the team that the Cougars takes to the air while the Falcons stick to the ground.

This year has proven no different. Air Force finishes its regular season on Saturday at noon in Colorado Springs, Colo. Then it takes its bags for the Liberty Bowl on Dec. 31. It achieved its 7-3 record (4-3 in the WAC) by rushing more times more often than it has in any year.

BYU is bowl-bound for the 15th straight year, again building a winning record (6-4, 4-2) around its passing attack.

But the Cougars could look a little more like the Falcons Saturday than the Falcons do. BYU has run more often than it has passed this season, 384 to 352; only twice this season has an AFA runner amassed more than 100 yards.

The Cougars' main worry against Air Force is turnovers. The Falcons have taken the ball from their opponents 21 times, turning it over just 14. BYU is last in the WAC in this category with just 15 takeaways against 28 turnovers. And Air Force has Carlton McDonald, a defensive back who leads the nation with eight interceptions.

"We never take Air Force lightly," said BYU head coach LaVell Edwards. "They don't beat themselves. They always scare us to death and it won't be any different this year with us in the hunt for the (WAC) championship."

The Cougars lead the series 13-1 and Air Force head coach Fisher DeBerry, in his ninth year, will be trying to beat BYU for the first time.

BYU's defense may be its best since the mid-80s. The Cougars continue to lead the WAC in rushing defense, allowing 139.4 yards per game, and are second to Air Force in overall defense.

UNIVERSALS — BYU quarterback Ryan Hancock's pass efficiency rating of 151.1 is first in the WAC and third in the nation ... Falcon opponents have a pass efficiency rating of 111.3 ... AFA QB Jarvis Baker is last in the WAC at 81.6 ... Kalin Hall, with 713 yards rushing, and Jamal Willis, with 710, are eighth and ninth in the WAC.

Trustees will decide fate of Women's Center Dec. 2

By MARISA WHITTAKER
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU Women's Resource Center should know its fate in early December.

The President's Council will present its recommendations on the proposed women's center to the BYU Board of Trustees for decision Dec. 2, said Margaret Smoot, director of public communications.

The recommendations have already been presented to Elder

Henry Eyring, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' commissioner of education, Smoot said.

The council's recommendations are the result of a six-month inquiry into the necessity of a center, Smoot said. The recommendations are based on the observations of the council and a special task force on the existing needs of women and the resources available on campus, she said.

Keep eyes open for local scams

By LAURA D. GOLDEN
Universe Staff Writer

Several recent scams have prompted area officials to caution students and Provo residents to be aware of fraudulent activities.

Capt. Duane Frasier of the Provo police department said there have been reports in the Salt Lake City and Provo areas of a scam involving primarily the elderly as victims.

A person who claims to be a bank representative goes to a resident and claims they have found a large sum of money in an envelope in the victim's yard, which they show the victim, Frasier said.

The "bank employee" then asks permission to use the phone of the victim to call the bank. The phone call is placed and the caller then asks the victim to put forth a sum of money for a safe-deposit box for "good faith and security," Frasier said.

Frasier said the scam artist tells the victim if no one claims the money, both the victim and the "bank employee" can then share it. He said the victim gives the money to the con artist, but when he/she goes to the bank, the envelope he/she receives back is full of shredded paper.

Jan Western, public information officer with the Utah Department of Commerce, said college students are a target for several types of scams. Western said because many students come from out of state, they are susceptible to schemes they wouldn't normally fall for at home.

"Students coming from out of state probably aren't familiar with local auto mechanics, making them targets for rip-off," Western said.

Western said students should ask for recommendations from people they trust and shop around before leaving their cars with a mechanic. She said once a place has been selected, the student should get a written estimate from the mechanic.

Western said the written estimate is a safeguard against being charged more than what the work was worth.

"It's hard to enforce verbal promises," Western said. "Students go to the mechanic thinking they'll be spending $50 and end up stuck with a bill of $500."

Western said Utah law states mechanics cannot charge more than 10 percent above the estimated price.

Credit card and calling card holders are also scam targets, Western said. High technology has made it possible for scam artists to access numbers, but there are other methods they use, such as photography and videotaping.

Western said scam artists can obtain calling card numbers by methods as simple as looking telephone number, according to the police report.

This is a police drawing of the man who tried to steal a female student's purse, then lied when caught.

Investigator Russ Fuller said the name and telephone number were both incorrect.

"We aren't sure if this suspect is connected with the many other thefts occurring in the library lately, but we can't say for sure he isn't," Fuller said.

The two women said the man had a backpack that was stuffed with items not resembling textbooks.

The suspect is described as a Caucasian male in his late 20s or early 30s, 5 feet 8 inches tall, thin build with brown crew cut hair and brown eyes. He was wearing a dark gray coat and blue pants with thin gray stripes on Nov. 5. The women said the man smelled of tobacco.

A man was seen bound rummaging through a female student's personal belongings on the fourth floor of the Harold B. Lee Library Nov. 5 at 2 p.m.

Two female students left their belongings unattended for a few minutes. When they returned, they found a man poking through the backs of their backpacks.

One of the students asked what the man was doing and then noticed her purse was missing. She asked if she could look in the man's backpack for it.

The man reached in his backpack and gave her back her purse and apologized to both students.

He told them he was a BYU student and gave them his name and

Town meetings favor public prayer

SALT LAKE CITY — More than 80 percent of those speaking during an electronic town meeting said they want Utah's Constitution changed to clarify to public prayer.

The Utahns, who were in nine different locations and linked by the state's educational television network, were speaking to the Religious Liberty Committee at the University of Utah Wednesday.

"This is a marvelous, gratifying process," said Rep. Byron Harward, R-Provo. "We are hundreds of miles apart, and yet we communicate in the same meeting."

The committee is deciding whether to recommend that the Legislature amend the constitution, which now bans prayer at public meetings. Such an amendment must be passed by a two-thirds majority in the Legislature and a simple majority of the citizens.

"I heard a strong concern for religious values," said Max Glen, executive minister for the Shared Ministry of Utah, one of 20 committee members appointed by legislative leaders. "But I also heard a lot of misinformation and saw a lot of fear."

Many who spoke in favor of the revision talked about the United States' being founded on the right to exercise religious freedom.

Abortion reversal tops Clinton agenda

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President-elect Clinton on Thursday detailed a crowded blueprint for action, including quick reversal of Bush administration abortion policy and creation of more than a half-million jobs in his first year.

Clinton, in his first formal news conference since the election, also promised his transition and administration would have the strictest ethical guidelines in history.

Calling on congressional Republicans as well as Democrats to work with him on his busy agenda, he said, "The clear mandate of this election from the American people was the end of politics as usual and the end of gridlock in Washington and the end of finger pointing and blame."

The Arkansas governor called the news conference to announce 48 additions to his transition team.

Signetics begins 500-employee lay-off

OREM — Signetics is starting to lay off 500 workers Thursday as part of the year-end shutdown announced last January.

The layoffs will occur in phases, and all 500 will be out of work by Christmas, said plant manager Byron Brown.

Philips Electronics, which owns Signetics, said it is closing the Orem plant because it makes an outdated type of wafer used to produce integrated circuits.

Signetics employed about 900 people when Philips announced the plant's closure. Since then, 200 people transferred to other Signetics plants, accepted jobs elsewhere or left the company for other reasons.

Signetics also has laid off a small trickle of employees since the middle of the year, Brown said.

Some 200 employees will remain on staff after the plant closes on Dec. 15 to transfer equipment to other facilities and clean up the site. That process will take about four months, he said.

Bennett seeks committee assignments

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah Sen.-elect Bob Bennett will fold his management consulting company and resign from the board of Franklin International, the day planner company, before he takes office in January.

Bennett said Senate ethics rules don't require him to resign from Franklin's board.

Bennett ran Franklin as chief executive for seven years, and when the stock went public last summer, Bennett's shares made him worth more than $25 million. He'll continue to own the stock.

Bennett left Franklin about a year ago and formed a management consulting company that ethics rules now require him to divest.

Bennett has been in Washington this week attending orientation seminars and lobbying for committee assignments that he says would help him protect Utah jobs.

He is focusing on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which oversees public lands; the Commerce Committee, which includes a space subcommittee important to Utah aerospace companies; the Banking Committee, important to companies with large Utah operations, including American Express; and the Budget Committee.

Gun accidents prompt proposals

By JAMES L. AHLSTROM
Universe Staff Writer

In reaction to injuries and deaths caused by children who easily gain access to firearms, a proposed Utah law would allow prosecution of adult firearm owners if the gun in question is not stored properly.

"To me one life is too many ... and sometimes people monitor their kids' access to the refrigerator more strictly than they monitor their kids' access to firearms," said Rep. Joanne Milner, D-Salt Lake City, the bill's sponsor.

National Rifle Association Field Representative George Nyfelder said that such a law "is not the American way."

Milner said the bill's design is to ensure proper storage of firearms.

"It is not a gun-control bill. People can have as many guns as they want," Milner said. She said the bill's design is to ensure proper storage of firearms.

In 1992 there have been 14 accidental shootings of Utah children, according to Health Department statistics.

Last week an 11-year-old Roy youth, Jed Conley, was accidentally shot in the chest by his 10-year-old friend. Conley was visiting his friend, whose older step-brother had the .22 caliber out for cleaning.

Ruth Nicholson, Conley's mother, said, "I'm angry that the gun was loaded and it was left the way it was ... I'm also upset that he pointed the gun at him. That was no accident ... I have not filed any charges, but I am going to contact a lawyer," Nicholson said.

Milner's bill would allow citizens such as Nicholson to file charges against the adult owner of the gun in shootings of this type.

Nyfelder said legislation of this type denies American citizens of their constitutional right to bear arms and shifts responsibility for actions in the wrong direction.

over a person's shoulder when they are standing at a pay phone. She said some artists use telephoto lenses to take pictures while the person has the card out to make a call.

"The best way to combat someone getting your number is to memorize it so you don't have to pull your card out every time you want to use it," Western said.

Western said callers should be aware of who's standing around them when at a phone booth. She said to be discreet when verbally telling an operator the number.

The Department of Merchant Services at First Security Bank in Salt Lake City is warning local and regional businesses to beware of a credit card scam which originated in Idaho, but has not yet been reported locally.

Casey Timmerman, a First Security bank card service representative, said scam artists call the store merchants and say they represent First Security Bank, the police, Visa or MasterCard, and say they have "lost the transmittal," the electronic transfer of account numbers merchants transmit on a daily basis.

Timmerman said credit card numbers are stolen from the merchants and goods can be shipped to another location once the scam artist reviews the accounts. He said numbers are also reused easily because the cardholder has no idea the number has been accessed by someone else.

Although this is more of a problem for merchants, Timmerman said cardholders need to check their monthly statements and save receipts.

Another defense against credit card number theft is to watch store activity. Western said cardholders should make sure they can see the card once they've handed it to a clerk.

After the purchase is made,

Open gun cabinets, especially in the home, may be a thing of the past as a new gun proposal concerning safe storage of firearms makes its way through the legislative process in Utah.

"It would be like convicting the owner of an automobile for vehicular manslaughter when someone took his car and killed someone else," Nyfelder said.

The bill's terminology for not properly storing a firearm is "reckless endangerment." Reckless endangerment would be a class A misdemeanor. However, if a child under the age of 15 was injured by a firearm which had not been properly stored, then it would become a third-degree felony, according to proposed amendments of section 76-5-111 of the Utah Code (1958), contained in Milner's bill.

Additionally, Milner's bill would require the creation of a "mandatory general course of education in firearm safety, providing for development of a model program by the State Office of Education."

"The NRA would look at the word 'mandatory' with a jaundiced (biased) eye," Nyfelder said. He said the NRA favors encouragement of firearm safety programs, but he says the word mandatory would give the courts too much leeway in determining what constitutes compliance.

Milner's bill would also require a warning label where firearms are distributed. The warning label would read: "WARNING: Any person who possesses a firearm is responsible for the safe handling, storage, and use of a firearm. Any person's failure to safely handle, store and use a firearm may result in civil liability for negligent storage of a firearm as provided in section 78-11-6.3 or criminal liability for reckless endangerment as provided in section 76-5-111."

Western said the clerk should give the customer the carbon copy of the transaction or rip it up.

She said another scam is 1-900 numbers and numbers offering free prizes.

"People don't realize what they're getting themselves into when they call these numbers," Western said.

Western said callers often fail to realize there are minimum charges, so no matter how long they stay on the phone, they will be charged the full amount.

Award given to speaker for outstanding work in communications education

By SUZANNE HOGGE
Universe Staff Writer

The recent election has given new hope to the American electoral process, said James Carey, former dean of the College of Communications at the University of Illinois.

Carey was the recipient of the Department of Communications' Leader Award for Distinguished Contributions to Journalism/Mass Communications Education. He received the award at the Communications Executive Symposium Thursday.

Carey said the election was an improvement from the low voter turnout, lack of seriousness in political forums, and "bitter antagonism of all forms of debate" in past elections.

He also spoke about the recent changes in Eastern Europe — many Westerners mistakenly take credit for the downfall of totalitarian government.

"We assume that the liberation of Eastern Europe resulted from something we did on their behalf and not from the internal dynamics of their own efforts," he said.

Furthermore, Carey said rather than trying to teach the people in Eastern Europe, we should try to learn from them. "We regularly assume these days that we have something to export to the peoples of Eastern Europe. We are less open to the thought that ... they might teach us something about democracy and civic culture," he said.

Carey also said we should not neglect the basics of communication despite recent advances in technology.

Porter says repent before mission

By LAUDIA ARGUETA

Porter's voices filled the ELWC room Wednesday night as prospective missionaries sang "Repent To Serve" at a conference led by Elder L. Aldin Porter.

Porter, executive director of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' missionary department and member of the Quorum of the Seventy, stressed the importance of repentance for those planning on serving a mission.

Porter said, "If you can come to an understanding of the repentance process, then you can with faith and cry repentance and do so with power and with authority in the name of the Lord."

Porter said members should knowingly break the commandments with the plan to repent and do what's right and keep the commandments," he said.

BYU dancers to compete at Medals Ball next week

By ISABEL HUELVES
Universe Staff Writer

More than 600 students will compete in the 1992 Medals Ball and Dance Championships Nov. 20 and Nov. 21 at the ELWC Ballroom at 6:30 p.m.

The championships are just for BYU and pre-college students in the amateur category, said Lee Wakefield, director.

Wakefield said the championships will include competitions in Latin dance, waltz, foxtrot, tango, quickstep, swing, cha cha, rumba, samba, paso doble and West Coast swing.

Besides watching the championships, the audience will have the chance to enjoy a performance by the U.S. professional Standard Ballroom Champions, Victor Veyrasset and Kathryn Shaffer, Nov. 20, said Claudia Hill, promotional director.

She said the championships' finals, together with other events, will be Nov. 21.

Some of the BYU participants are in the top student levels.

"They have reached a very high standard in the Latin division. Some couples have placed in the two top positions in the last two years," Hill said.

Registration is at the door and is open to students, Hill said.

She said the 1992 Medals and Dance Championships is sponsored by the BYU Ballroom Dance Division. An audience of 2000 people is expected each night and tickets sell out fast.

Tickets are available at the Dance Ticket Office in 165 RB starting Saturday.

Student finds joy teaching Russians

By LISA GROVER
Universe Staff Writer

Life for the Russians was better before the end of the Communist regime, said one BYU student who spent six months as a teacher and a student in Russia.

STUDENT PROFILE

LISA LONDON

Liisa London, a 20-year-old junior, majoring in Russian and English, from Morgan, said that Russian people found freedom unsettling.

"The people there want order. They don't understand that you can have freedom and order at the same time," London said.

London went to Russia as part of a program in the Family Science Department for teaching English to children. During her stay, she lived with a Russian family in Moscow, taught their 3-year-old daughter English, and she studied at a Russian University.

"The people there have so little, but they give you everything. They are so genuine," London said.

London said she found that living arrangements and family structure are somewhat different there, mostly due to housing shortages. She said the family she lived with consisted of a great-grandmother, a grandmother, a mother and a daughter.

As part of her trip, London traveled around the former Soviet Union to places like Kiev, St. Petersburg and Lithuania.

London said her favorite part of the entire experience was teaching the little girl that she lived with.

"When I left she was functionally fluent," said London. "One time she gave me a hug and said, 'I love you' and then opened her arms and said, 'your turn.' That was great."

London will be returning to Moscow in January where she will serve a mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"I want to show the people that there's joy in life; to give them hope," London said. "Everything they've always been taught is false; to many of them communism was their religion. I want to show them another way."

Art by Y professor on display in SLC

By MONICA MONTJOY
Universe Staff Writer

The Salt Lake City Public Library is featuring an art display by Ron Richmond, BYU professor of art, in the Atrium Galleria until Dec. 1.

Richmond, a Colorado native, moved to Utah to study art at BYU. He completed a bachelor's and a master's degree in fine arts in 1987 and 1992 respectively.

Richmond said his paintings are influenced by the sublime. He said he has a fascination with the natural world. "My work incorporates philosophies I have synthesized from the books and articles I have read," Richmond said.

Richmond has a unique style that has been recognized around the nation, said Elizabeth Smith, curator of the Museum of Contemporary Art in Los Angeles.

Richmond was presented a merit award from Smith in a show at BYU in 1991.

Richmond has been recognized in various museums and galleries across the country in 1991 and 1992, said Nora Halpern, former curator for the Frederick Wiseman collection.

Richmond said he chose to use birch panels and oil paint to create art that was very creative and durable. The paintings have a transparent feature to them, and the marks and scratches are purposely put in the paintings to create texture, Richmond said.

Richmond said he is concerned about the demise of craftsmanship and the irresponsibility that has shown up in some present and past art trends. Richmond hopes that his art will help people get back to the healing, completeness and harmony of nature.

New Provo shop considers the kitchen

By DOLLY DORIUS
and MIKE BEESON
Universe Staff Writer

A new Provo gourmet shop has everything for your kitchen, as well as many gift ideas, even for the person who has everything.

Consider the Kitchen, owned by the Bird family of Provo, opened Nov. 2. The store has an extensive selection of unique kitchen supplies; everything ranging from hippo salt shakers, which sits on top of scale pepper shakers, to pizza stones, to give a brick-oven flavor, to a variety of foreign foods.

"This kind of store is really popular right now," said Adrienne Bird, 22, a senior in classical civilization whose family owns the store.

As customers walk in the store, they are warmly greeted with hot spice cider, samples of freshly baked breads and Biscotti cookies, which are usually eaten with hot cocoa.

Because of the large number of Provo residents who have lived in European countries, Bird said, Consider the Kitchen incorporated foreign goods in the store. The food items range from candy from Holland, cooking oils and soda flavoring from Italy, cookies from France and chocolates from Switzerland.

The store also has a variety of hard-to-find cooking appliances, such as fondue pots and pasta makers. Other custom items include pie keepers, hand-crafted cutting-board stands and the latest gadgets: bagel slicers, taco racks, apple wedgers and burger fryers.

Consider the Kitchen helps the many weddings that take place in Provo by providing a bridal registry, Bird said.

"This is a perfect place to buy a gift for a wedding or your mother, because we have such unique items," Bird said.

The store carries flatware, animal-theme tableware, such as pigs, cows and dogs, and accessories.

Customers Pat Harris and Elaine Peterson said Consider the Kitchen is a great place to get gifts for difficult-to-buy-for friends and family.

Consider the Kitchen offers a children's line as well, including paper chef hats, aprons, easy-to-make cookie mixes and rubber ducks.

The store, located on University Avenue, had its grand opening Tuesday.

Barkley, Suns beat Jazz at Delta Center

By CRAIG NELSON
 Universe Sports Writer

Still winless in the Delta Center for the 1992-93 season, after losing to the Phoenix Suns 102-91 last night, the 2-2 Utah Jazz are looking for a wakeup call.

"I hate to use excuses, we're not playing any defense right now," said Utah guard Jeff Malone. "We're playing better on the road than we are at home. We're coming out here like we're invincible and (the opposing) teams are taking us out of the game early."

Phoenix went up 33-23 at the end of the first quarter, and the Jazz never caught up. Suns forward Cedric Ceballos scored 14 of his 24 points in the first quarter. "I think Cedric has been a little bit hesitant to show what he can do," said Phoenix Head coach Paul Westphal. "But I think he really showed he belongs out there tonight."

Suns forward Charles Barkley scored 25 points to lead Phoenix. Karl Malone led the Jazz with 32 points. Utah shot a dismal 37 percent for the game. Phoenix shot 46 percent.

"We missed a lot of easy shots and that created a lot of easy baskets for them on the other end," said Jazz guard Jay Humphries. The Jazz' game plan is to hold their opponent to 25 points per quarter, but the Suns came out strong, scoring 33 in the first quarter.

"I thought we came out with a real aggressive attitude to start the game and it just carried us through," said Suns guard Danny Ainge. "We haven't been playing well lately and we knew that if we came in and played like we've been playing that Utah would blow us out."

Judge to rule on free agency for Steve Young, 604 others

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Attorneys for Philadelphia defensive lineman Reggie White and several hundred other players asked a federal judge Thursday to declare them free agents after the season.

White was joined as a plaintiff by Pittsburgh linebacker Hardy Nickerson, New Orleans quarterback Mike Buck and former Seattle and Los Angeles Raider defensive back Van McElroy. If Judge David Doty rules that White has a valid class action lawsuit, as many as 605 players who are in the final year of their contracts, including former BYU quarterback Steve Young, could be declared free agents as of Feb. 1, 1993.

The players' request comes after a Minneapolis jury's decision that the league's Plan B free agency system was a violation of antitrust laws.

Young, who plays for San Francisco, leads the NFL in pass efficiency with a rating of 113.2 and would command a great deal of attention on the open market. The NFL's next best pass efficiency rating, 95, belongs to Buffalo's Jim Kelly.

NFL attorney Frank Rothman asked the court to retain Plan B until an appeal of the Minneapolis ruling can be heard. "If we are right and the court grants free agency to 600 players... chaos," Rothman said. "We can never unscramble that egg."

Doty took the matter under advisement and is expected to rule next week. The judge issued a temporary restraining order in September freeing tight end Keith Jackson and nine other players who were without contracts for 1992.

Alumni team to battle Y spikers

By LARRY D. ALLEN
 Universe Sports Writer

The BYU men's volleyball team takes on an alumni team with top players from the past at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Smith Fieldhouse.

The alumni team will feature Lane Peterson, who played at the 1987 World University games in Yugoslavia, and Dave Richards, who was a member of the 1987 U.S. National Team.

The alumni team will be coached by Rich Cortez, who led the men's volleyball team as a club sport from 1985 to 1989.

Rich's brother Rod Cortez, Scott Waddell and Chris Rushing will also play Saturday. The three played for Coach Carl McGown when BYU entered the NCAA in 1990. And Pat Lindahl, who played on BYU's club team, will be the sixth player.

BYU won the Manitoba Invitational in October. Two of their wins came against the University of Manitoba, which boasts Canada's premier team. It beat then-No. 3 Penn State to win the Manitoba Invitational in 1991.

"This year's (BYU) team is very good," McGown said. "The success of a volleyball team is closely tied

Cougs beat SDSU, could clinch WAC title tonight

By JENNY SIDDOWAY
 Universe Sports Writer

In a Thursday night match against San Diego State University, the eighth-ranked Cougar volleyball squad increased its win streak to 21 matches, one shy of the BYU record set in 1986-87, and moved within one win of clinching the coveted Western Athletic Conference title.

The Aztecs fell 6-15, 15-7, 15-6, 15-13. With the victory, BYU improved to 22-3 overall and 11-0 in the WAC while San Diego State dropped to 20-9, 5-6.

"It was a tough match," BYU head volleyball coach Elaine Michaelis said. "San Diego State played very well. They out-hit us and out-blocked us, but we served really tough. We had a let-down in the first game, but then we played smart. We had some good net play that allowed us to play heads-up volleyball."

In the first set, the Cougars took an early 4-1 lead, but SDSU scored the last 10 points to secure the win.

"We were not in sync in the first game," Michaelis said. "We were not ready to play. We shifted into second gear and got the intensity that put us back in the match. We needed to settle down and make good choices."

The second game was back-and-forth in the early going. After a 7-7 tie, BYU scored the final eight points to win the game. Teal Nieminen had three service aces in the set.

BYU was never challenged in the third game.

In the final set, San Diego took a 13-9 lead, but Cougar serving experience and net strength enabled BYU to score the final six points of the match.

Michaelis said, "They are a fine team and if they could pass, they could stay with anyone."

Leading the Cougars, Nieminen had 21 kills and five service aces. Michele Fellows added 18 kills while Shannan Skidmore recorded 17 kills and nine digs. Charlene Johnson chipped in 58 assists and 9 digs.

For the Aztecs, Gracie Schutt had 17 kills and 13 digs while Jennifer Miller added 13 kills and 11 digs.

The Cougars have three remaining WAC matches and a win over No. 25 Fresno State (14-9, 8-2) tonight would guarantee the Cougars sole ownership of the WAC crown. "Hopefully we can control the match with our serves," Michaelis said.

Tonight's contest against Fresno State will begin at 8:30 p.m. MDT and will be broadcast live on KSRR 1400 AM in Utah County and on KMGR 1230 AM in Salt Lake City.

SPORTS NOTES

BYU x-country teams seek WAC titles

The BYU men's and women's cross country teams will compete Saturday at the WAC and Regional Cross Country Championships in Salt Lake City. The 10k races begin at 10 a.m. (men) and 11 (women) at Rose Park.

The meet serves as the WAC and Region 7 Championships as well as a qualifying meet for the NCAA Championships Nov. 23. Only the first and second place teams and the top three runners will qualify for nationals.

The women's team, ranked 6th in the nation, is expected to advance to the national meet along with No. 5 Northern Arizona.

"Arizona is favored to win, but they have to run well because we will make them earn it," said Patrick Shane, head coach of the Cougar women.

BYU's Tonya Todd and Dorota Buczkowska are expected to finish in the top three in the District 7 and WAC rankings.

The Cougs have won the WAC nine of the last 10 years. "We will have to run well," Shane said. "They are not going to mail us the trophy."

Also competing for BYU will be Heather Witney, Margi Weber, Mary Graham, Kristen Gebhart, Kim Stossel and Julie Cherrington.

Men's head coach Sherald James will take seven runners from his 18th-ranked team to the meet, the most each team is allowed. All-American Jason Pyrah will be joined by MacArthur Lane, Harvey Franco, Jeff Wilson, Dave Rawlins, Craig Lawson and Rick Jaster.

"We have a good chance of winning," James said. "Everyone is ready and in good shape, but everyone must perform to the best of their abilities."

The men will face tough competition from Air Force, which won last year, and Colorado, which beat BYU at the Rocky Mountain Shoot-out Oct. 3. —By Scott Clark and Amy Kunz

Howe's lifetime ban lasts 5 months

NEW YORK — Steve Howe, the first player banned from baseball for life because of drugs, was reinstated Thursday by arbitrator George Nicolau.

Howe, 34, was suspended June 8 by then-commissioner Fay Vincent following the left-hander's seventh incident related to drugs or alcohol. Howe was with the New York Yankees at the time of the suspension, which followed a guilty plea in U.S. District Court in Missoula, Mont., to a misdemeanor charge of attempting to buy a gram of cocaine.

He is a free agent and can sign a contract subject to certain conditions, including drug testing and aftercare.

"It makes baseball look silly and I think there'll be a lot of adverse reaction," said Vincent, who resigned Sept. 7.

"There's not a lot that anybody can say about the case until the opinion comes out," said Richard Moss, Howe's lawyer and agent. "I'm confident once that comes out, people can understand what happened and why it happened and can be a little more sympathetic to Steve Howe." — AP

Y swimmers debut Saturday vs. UNLV

BYU women's and men's swim teams open their home schedules this Saturday in Provo against UNLV. The meet will start at 1 p.m. and is open to the public, admission is free.

The women (2-0) beat New Mexico and New Mexico State last weekend, but they have had a tough time with UNLV in recent years.

"UNLV has a great team as always. They have beaten us the last couple of years, but I think this year we should match up better," said Stan Crump, women's swimming coach. The women are hoping for the return of WAC champion Jill Teeple, who is recovering from arthroscopic knee surgery. Teeple did not make the trip to New Mexico.

The men (1-0) lost to UNM last weekend, but crushed New Mexico State. Last year's WAC Swimmer of the Year, Tomislav Karlo picked up where he left off by winning several races on the opening road trip.

Y racquetball teams to face Weber St.

BYU's racquetball teams begin their seasons Saturday at 10 a.m. with a tournament against Weber State in the Richards Building racquetball courts.

The teams will be facing Weber State again in February. Before that they will compete with Air Force and UCLA in January.

They face UCLA again in February. "We are looking forward to an exciting season," said Sylvia Sawyer, the head coach of BYU's teams for the sixth year. "Most of these players come from this area and are the best of their schools. The word is spreading."

The men's team has five returning players from last season: Brian Campbell, Mike North, Nathan Passey, Jerry Steck and Brian Weaver. New to the team are Phil Burbank, 29, a junior from Salt Lake City majoring in political science; Chris Crawford, 21, a sophomore from Stettler, Alberta, Canada, majoring in mathematics and Danny Spencer, 23, a junior from Pocatello, Idaho, majoring in premedicine.

Truckers will get drug, alcohol test at some Utah ports

By PHILIP DEAN
Universe Staff Writer

Random drug and alcohol tests will be given to truck drivers at Utah's eight ports of entry as part of a study being done by the Federal Highway Administration.

The results of the study will be given to the FHA to determine if there is a problem with alcohol and drug abuse among truck drivers.

Kevin Beckstrom of the Utah Department of Transportation said Utah is one of four states selected to perform the congressionally mandated testing. Nebraska, New Jersey and Minnesota are the other states participating in the study.

"This is not a dragnet on truck drivers," Beckstrom said. However, if a driver is found to have a blood alcohol level above .02, the driver will be held at the port for 24 hours.

The tests will be administered by port of entry personnel and not law enforcement agents. Beckstrom said the port personnel do have some authority to hold up drivers or call the police if problems arise.

Beckstrom said drivers who pull into the port are selected for testing by a computer-generated random number list.

"For example, if the computer comes up with the number 68, then the 68th truck would be tested," Beckstrom said.

"Once they are selected for testing, it is basically mandatory for them to be tested," Beckstrom said.

Norm Lindgren, a UDOT official, said the alcohol tests are given with a breathalyzer and the drug tests are done through a urine sample. Lindgren said the alcohol tests are given 24 hours a day, while one drug unit divides its time among the ports.

Beckstrom said the FHA has given Utah $1.2 million for the one-year study.

"We're hoping this study and subsequent programs will help to weed out drivers who are irresponsible," Beckstrom said.

Craig Olsen of Mountain Pacific Transport, a trucking company in Lindon, said he is pleased with the new program and hopes it helps to control alcohol and drug abuse in the trucking industry.

Olsen said the responsible drivers won't mind the testing and in fact will welcome it.

"We need to make this an industry people want to get into, and by cleaning up the abuse among drivers, I think we'll do it," Olsen said.

The eight ports of entry included in the study are St. George, Echo, Price, Perry, Kanab, Wendover, Monticello and Daniels Canyon.

Utah governor-elect asks administrators to resign

Associated Press

ST. GEORGE — Utah Gov.-elect Mike Leavitt has named the 10 state department heads whom he has asked to resign.

"That represents a substantial change, but I feel government needs renewal," Leavitt told the Utah Association of Counties. "This will be a new administration, with fresh ideas and a new agenda."

The 10 department directors asked to resign are: Ted Stewart, Department of Commerce; Barclay Gardner, acting director of Community & Economic Development; Rod Betit, acting director of Department of Health; Ken Alkema, Department of Environmental Quality; Alice Shearer, Department of Administrative Services; Miles "Cap" Ferry, Department of Agriculture; and Eugene Findlay, Department of Transportation.

Others are Norm Angus, Department of Human Services; Harold Yancey, Department of Insurance; and Dee Hansen, Department of Natural Resources.

Ortega under fire on gay rights

By BRUCE HALL
Universe Staff Writer

Salt Lake City's new police chief, Ruben Ortega, is under fire by several gay and lesbian groups before he has even taken office.

In a meeting Monday, the former Phoenix police chief was accused of being indifferent to the civil rights of homosexuals by several leaders of Salt Lake City's gay and lesbian community.

"We wanted Ortega to tell us he would look after the rights of homosexuals and use his influence to help others in the police force respect our rights," said Michael Aaron, Gay and Lesbian Utah Democrats chair.

Aaron said Ortega had followed an anti-homosexual policy when he was a police chief in Phoenix.

Ortega said it was the job of vice-officers to investigate prostitution among both the heterosexual and homosexual populations. He said he was not aware of any policy of taking down license plate numbers and addresses of known homosexuals. He said the directive must have been written before he got there.

Randy Richardson, editor of Outfront Review, a magazine for gays and lesbians, came to Ortega's defense and asked his accusers to produce evidence to back up their claims.

"There is nothing here beyond hearsay and rumor," Richardson said.

Ortega said he has promised to assign an assistant police chief as gay community liaison, and said he would insure that the department would thoroughly investigate hate-crimes and crimes against homosexuals.

"This is not at the top of my list and it's not going to be," Ortega said. "The city has worse problems — delayed (response to emergency) calls, drugs and gangs. I've got a four-year contract in my pocket, and this is no way to start a relationship with me."

Ortega will become the Salt Lake police chief Dec. 1.

Early snowfall opens resorts

Long season awaits enthusiastic skiers

By BRUCE HALL
Universe Staff Writer

Many of Utah's ski resorts are open for business thanks to an early snowfall along the Wasatch front.

Skiers have their choice of four resort areas this week, according to the Ski Utah snow report. Brighton has three lifts open, Solitude is open with two lifts in operation and Park City has one lift open.

Powder Mountain has opened its Timberline and Sundown areas for day skiing and has some night skiing available.

Ski Utah also reports an early opening on Nov. 20 for Alta. Resorts opening on Nov. 21 include Beaver Mountain, Snow Basin, Sundance, Brian Head and ParkWest.

Deer Valley will not be opened until Dec. 5.

Park City has been using its snowmaking capabilities to produce more than 75-acre feet of snow since Nov. 6.

"The artificial snow machines help us to keep most of our major runs open, even if we receive little or no snow for an extended period. All we need to operate our equipment is low enough temperatures to keep the snow from melting," said Mark Menlove, an information director for Park City Ski Area.

Jina Robins, Utah Travel Council assistant, said there are a wide range of prices among Utah ski areas this season.

She said the least expensive place to ski for the price-conscious is Powder Mountain in Ogden Canyon, where the cost of an all-day lift ticket is $20.

The most expensive place to tear down the slopes is Deer Valley with a sticker price of $43.

Skiers take to the slopes at Park City last season. Park City, Brighton, Solitude and Powder Mountain are open and groomed as a result of an early snowfall.

Teasdale hires lawyer in bid to reclaim race

CHRISTY MARX
Universe Staff Writer

Christy Teasdale's continuing effort to win a race she resigned in has recently taken on a new twist: a lawyer.

Teasdale tried to claim victory as an elected candidate for the Provo Board of Education, although she was pulled out of the race three weeks before the election. She resigned because she received a spot in the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, County Clerk Bruce Peacock said.

Teasdale's father, Jim Tracy, complained that the public didn't receive enough notification of Teasdale's withdrawal and said an effort should have been made to cross her name off the ballot.

Peacock agreed that more could have been done to notify the public of her withdrawal, but he was hesitant to tamper with the ballots because it could have confused the electorate.

resignation did not fit those criteria, he said.

Deputy Attorney Kent Sundberg said the statute refers only to municipal elections, not to nonpartisan races such as the school board. Therefore, the statute did not apply in Teasdale's case. He recommended the commission declare Clark the victor.

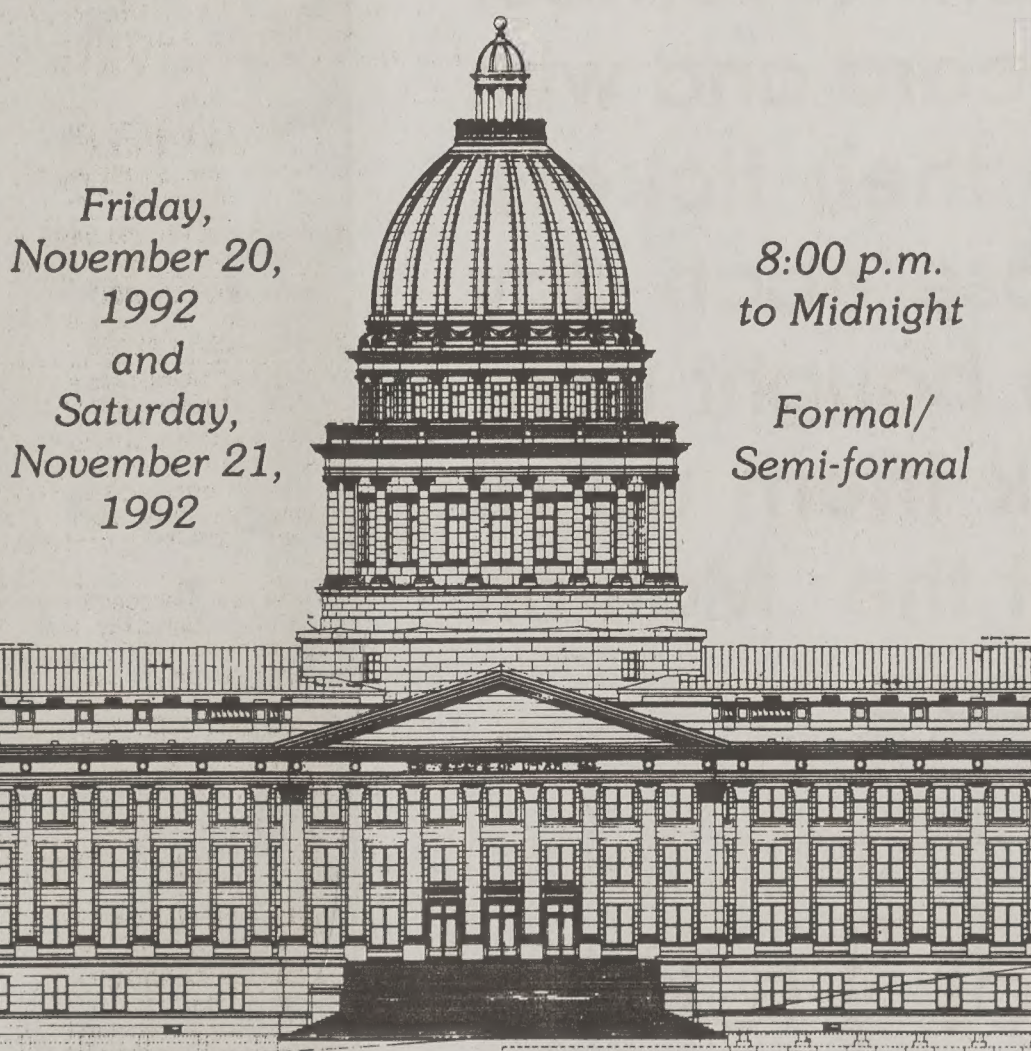

"I'm happy to still be serving on the board. I felt like it was comedy of errors, really," Clark said.

Peacock said after Teasdale realized she had won the election, she wanted to claim the victory. However, "when we receive a resignation, we can assume it's a resignation," he said.

Teasdale's father, Jim Tracy, complained that the public didn't receive enough notification of Teasdale's withdrawal and said an effort should have been made to cross her name off the ballot.

Peacock agreed that more could have been done to notify the public of her withdrawal, but he was hesitant to tamper with the ballots because it could have confused the electorate.

Utah residents' poetry to be featured on UTA

By MATTHEW S. FRANCK
Universe Staff Writer

A local art organization hopes to make riding the bus an edifying experience by displaying poetry in Utah Transit Authority buses.

The Contemporary Arts Group plans to place poetry, written exclusively by Utah citizens, on hundreds of UTA buses throughout the state in attempt to integrate culture into everyday life.

Richard Goodwin, a Salt Lake City resident who thought of the idea, says the new program, entitled "Buslines," gives Utah poets a unique opportunity to share their work with more than 80,000 readers each day.

"The program gives artists the chance to be heard loud and clear, while also sparking interest in the arts throughout the state," he said.

The program will replace some of the advertisements for products like cough medicines and cigarettes, which traditionally line the interior of buses, with poems which will be switched monthly. The program has already been accepted by the Utah Transit Authority.

Goodwin encourages poets of all walks of life to submit their works, saying amateur artists are particularly encouraged to participate.

He says his organization will consider poetry on all subjects. Twenty-four finalists will have their poems placed on every UTA bus for an entire month.

Goodwin says all buses will carry the same poems in order to encourage discussion between citizens from all areas along the Wasatch Front.

He says similar programs have been very successful throughout Europe and on the East Coast.

Bill Barnes, a spokesman for the UTA, says reaction from the media and the public has been positive. He said he is very excited about the new program. The program will run indefinitely, he said.

Those wishing to participate can send poetry to "Buslines" P.O. Box 1595, Salt Lake City, Utah, 84110. Poetry must be 12 lines or less and have no more than 64 characters per line.

GOP governors meet to address role in Democratic majority

Utah Gov. Norm Bangert and Gov.-elect Mike Leavitt will attend the 1992 Republican Governor's Association Conference to discuss the role the Republican party plays in a government of Democratic majority.

Republican governors, staff members and governor-elect are invited to attend the conference held at Lake Geneva, Wis., from Nov. 14-17. The conference will focus on the theme of "America's Challenges."

"With a Democratic president and a Democratic Congress," said Budd Scruggs, former chief of staff for Bangert, "the way governors do business will be fundamentally different from the previous years of Republican administrations."

Scruggs said during the twelve years of Republicans in the White House, sometimes governors had to "bite their tongues" on certain issues.

With a Democratic President, Republican governors will be able to express their objections more easily, Scruggs said.

Therefore, they will have to be more thoughtful in their policy preferences.

The U.S. News and World Report of Nov. 9 said because of the pre-occupation with the elections, there is no detailed agenda set for the 1992 conference.

Carol Nixon, chief of staff for Bangert, disagreed and said the conference always has an agenda.

"This year the focus will be on the theme of 'America's Challenge,'" she said.

"Three plenary sessions will address the topics: One, A wrap up of the 1992 challenges. Two, America's economic future — challenges in the global marketplace. Three, Health care, welfare and education reform — challenges and solutions for the future," Nixon said.

After the three plenary sessions, where everyone registered for the conference can attend, a session for "governors only" will take place, Nixon said.

In this session, governors share ideas, talk about the future and focus on their role in government, Nixon said.

Scruggs said training and mentoring of new governors will also take place at the conference.

No tax dollars are used for this conference.

"The expense for the conference is not funded by the state," Nixon said. "Funds from the Governor's Ball Fund, where private donations are contributed, are used for the governor's travel expenses."

Hornets sign Mourning for $26 million

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — One week into the NBA season, the Charlotte Hornets added their No. 1 draft pick Thursday when Alonzo Mourning ended his hold-out and signed a six-year contract reportedly worth $26.25 million.

The 6-foot-10 Georgetown center, drafted for his strong rebounding and shot-blocking skills, said he was putting the five-month signing impasse behind him. "That's in the past now," Mourning said. "I'm ready to get started and contribute to this team. I'll do anything I can to help Charlotte win some ball games."

Mourning will suit up for Friday night's road game against the Indiana Pacers. Coach Allan Bristow said Mourning may start. "Everyone is relieved to have this behind us, and now the team can concentrate on getting Alonzo acclimated to everything," Bristow said. "His presence in the middle is going to be a major factor in our team's success this season."

Team officials would not confirm reports that Mourning had agreed to a six-year deal that will pay him $2.5 million for his rookie season.

The Hornets had $1.96 million available under their salary cap this year. To sign Mourning, they freed up the balance of his first-year salary by restructuring the contract of sixth man Dell Curry, deferring $450,000 of his salary.
